

Commerce 1BA3 Organizational Behaviour Fall 2020 Human Resources & Management

COURSE OBJECTIVE

The central objective of this course is to enrich your ability to understand and practice many of the “survival skills” necessary to succeed in modern organizations. The content of this course focuses on individuals and groups as the primary unit of analysis. You will learn (or learn in greater detail), topics such as personality; values; perception; motivation; communication; group dynamics; leadership; power & politics; conflict & stress management, and change management. The emphasis throughout the course is on the strategic management of organizations as well as on your own individual skill development, through the effective understanding and application of theory and related behavioural choices.
